STORY OF THE LIBERTY TREE

After the Boston Tea Party, as resistance to the Crown grew, a ceremony of raising a Liberty Tree became increasingly popular in New England. This tree was usually a straight pine, over forty-eight feet in height, which when stripped of its branches, became a flag pole and bulletin board and a rallying point for demonstrating Whigs. The flag that was flown from this pole was not the flag we are accustomed to see, but the Taunton Flag, a British red Ensign with the word LIBERTY sewn in white across the lower part of the field. This tree and flag was a symbol of our country's highest ideal, the principle of freedom.

LEISTER QUALITY

Craftsmanship in cabinetry as well as perpetuating a concept and design that is as native American as the term "Yankee" is the tradition of Leisters "Liberty Tree Collection".

A Benchmark of the Furniture Industry...

The charm and warmth of native pine recalls a simpler, more gracious way of life. The same care in construction which has preserved many of the old cherished pieces of our colonial past is retained in the individuality of each Leister piece.

Living with fine furniture always rewards its owners with the knowledge that their pride in their homes is recognized by others. Ageless colonial design is always in harmony with the present and never dates itself with obsolescence. Our two distinctive finishes adapt to any color theme that reflects your individual personality.

Feel and Touch — Missing, in the catalogue, is the ability for you to "feel and touch" the "Liberty Tree Collection". The reaction to the soft lustre in the finish is an enjoyment to be savored only in its physical presence. We at Leisters are proud to have the opportunity to add to the joy of your home with our "Liberty Tree Collection".
